SHIP NOTES · REGAL PRINCESS

The line that publishes the routes.

Regal Princess carries about 3,560 guests across 15 passenger decks. What sets her apart for our purposes isn't the ship — it's that Princess publishes a written, deck-by-deck accessible route guide naming which venues and which restrooms are reachable. Almost nobody else does that.

At a glance

CLASS	Royal · ~3,560
ACCESSIBLE CABINS	36 of 1,780 — 29 balcony, 7 inside
LIFTS	Doorways 36–42 inches
HARDEST PART	No oceanview cabins at all

36 ACCESSIBLE STATEROOMS — 29 BALCONY, 7 INTERIOR

Among 1,780 cabins. Note what's missing: Regal Princess has no oceanview cabins at all, so the choice is balcony or inside. If a window matters to you and a balcony is out of budget, this ship can't offer the middle option.

What's in an accessible cabin

- Wider cabin and bathroom doorways, with reduced or removed thresholds.
- Roll-in shower with a hand-held showerhead, grab bars and handrails.
- Bath distress alarms, lowered closet railings and sinks.
- Equipment on request: toilet seat raisers, shower stools and bed boards — free, and almost nobody asks for them.

36–42in

Lift doorways. Published by Princess, which almost no line does — and the number that decides whether a wide chair fits.

Getting around, and the published routes

- Lift doorways are 36 to 42 inches, which matters if you use a wider chair or a scooter.
- Princess publishes accessible routes deck by deck, naming the wheelchair-accessible restrooms and which lift lobbies connect which hallways. Read it for your sailing before you book a cabin.
- Special gangway mechanisms are used at many ports for embarkation and disembarkation.
- The SeaWalk — a glass-floored walkway cantilevered 128 feet above the sea — is flat and reachable, and it's the ship's signature.

THIS PAGE GETS MEASURED IN OCTOBER

Ai-Cruise Granny's person sails Regal Princess in October 2026 out of Fort Lauderdale, on an itinerary with a tender port and a step-free pier three days apart. The walk from cabin to lift, the real gangway, and what the tender actually asks of you all get recorded. Join the list to get it.

Check with Princess

- Ask for the accessible cabin number and read Princess's accessible route guide for that deck.
- Ask for the free equipment you need — bed boards, shower stool, toilet seat raiser — at booking.

- Ask how tendering will be handled, and remember there's no refund for a port missed on mobility grounds.
- Submit the accessibility form early; Princess wants it well before sailing.
